

Best Places to Work in the Federal Government®

2024 Overall Rankings

President Donald Trump has sent shockwaves throughout the federal government since taking office on Jan. 20, 2025, firing and sidelining employees, offering buyouts, shutting down or disrupting the work of numerous agencies, ending remote work and proposing to replace nonpartisan, merit-based civil servants with political loyalists.

It is against this backdrop that we are releasing the 2024 Best Places to Work in the Federal Government® rankings and data, shining a light both on the agencies that received high overall marks from their employees, and those that received low marks during the during the last year of the Biden administration.

Based on surveys of more than 1 million federal employees at 75 large, midsize and small agencies, as well as at 457 agency subcomponents, the Best Places to Work government-wide employee engagement and satisfaction score for 2024 was 67.7 out of 100.

This Best Places to Work score, along with the rankings listed below and the accompanying data, provide a benchmark for the year ahead under the Trump administration, with the widespread disruptions likely to have a significant impact on employee morale.

The rankings show that NASA topped the list of large agencies, the Government Accountability Office ranked first among midsize agencies and the National Indian Gaming Commission headed the small agency category.

The National Institutes of Health ranked first among large agency subcomponents; the Kennedy Space Center topped the midsize subcomponent list; and the Office of Negotiations & Restructuring at the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. led the small subcomponent category.
